

Project 8

REPORT

Bryan Perdomo | COP3813 | 10/2/2020

This project, similar to project 2, consisted of giving our project directory a much needed facelift. I used bootstrap once more to handle the bulk of the styling, formatting, and functionality, and focused my attention on filling the portal with appropriate content and making sure the links worked correctly. This was an objectively easy assignment and did not take long, but I feel it's use and importance should be highly regarded. I now have a template portal that will nicely showcase any and all of my future works in one digestible place. Some difficulties I encountered were finding the right size of image to replace the template images while maintaining the resolution, and changing some icons with my own. Although I resized the images I used beforehand, the template looked its best when I stuck to using pictures that were around 700x450. Additionally I think the templates footer icons were apart of some class that did not take kindly to me replacing them. I will try to squash this bug in the future as I continue to update my portal.
